Class Prophecy

It is June 6, 1949. We are at a big Alumni meeting of Taylor High School. At some one's suggestion, we have separated according to our respective graduating classes.

This is the tenth anniversary, to the exact day, of the Commencement Exercises of the senior class of '39. I think that this said group should be a very interesting one so we shall join them and see what great changes have taken place in the lives of these personages in the past ten years.

Taking charge of the group is none other than Al Richards, whom you will remember as president of his class in '39. He is indeed honoring us with his presence, for as all of us know, he now is sole owner of the great Richards Steele Corporation. We learn that his very capable private secretary is Marietta Adamson. She was unable to attend this great gathering.

Mr. Richards has decided the best way to find out all about his fellow classmates is to let each one speak for himself.
