Senior Prophecy

My! But it's great to see old friends again, isn't it? I met one of mine, Catherine Rankin, recently, as I was modeling a "Creation by Arden"—Arden meaning Mary Connelly, of course. Since Catherine was sitting in the front row and the only one wearing the uniform of the Waves, I noticed her immediately. After finishing, I sought her out and we soon began reminiscing. Then, we met Janet Jenkins, owner of the Janee Shop for which I model, and Nancy Emery, head buyer, for lunch. We four decided to "make a day of it." After lunching at "Edie's Pantry," one of the many restaurants managed by Edith Wantland, we went to the Reds-Brooklyn game. Incidentally, Doug Turner is now pitching for the Reds, with Eddie Jackson as shortstop, and Gordon Powell at first base. Janet mentioned that Jerry Steiner is now playing professional basketball for the New York Celtics and James Haney is almost as well known among sports announcers as Bill Stern. After the game, Nancy wished to visit a Television station so we went to WLW-T Studios now under the direction of Millard Mitchell. Great was our surprise to see Bob Spronk's "Starmakers" with Bob on saxophone, Clyde Stephenson on clarinet, and Sue Weisbrodt, vocalist. Next on the musical agenda was Jo Ann Heim, concert pianist, playing that strangely beautiful piece, "Fire Dance." A duet followed with Nancy Adkins and Dorothy Moore singing "Blue Moon." Moving on we found the next studio filled with other alumni, so we sat down to listen. First of the speakers was Patricia Murphy on "Greater Independence for Women" and following her was Patricia Coward on "Journalism, the Field of Youth and Adventure."
